

Editorial Note FQS Reviews

With the appearance of Issue 2 of FQS we are also introducing the rubric FQS Reviews. In the present issue you can find, even though we only have just begun in April to send out media units, in all six review notes and review essays.

We hope to soon be able to present a large spectrum of discussions on media units, whereas then, in contrast to this time, the write-ups (should) also be available in an English translation. Several of the reviews, which are currently being worked on, can be looked at in the Review-Preview.

Since we consider a review to be an opinion, which is written from an (individual) point-of-view, we hope that other opinions or points-of-view can find voice through the Discussionboard. In the spirit of FQS, the rubric reviews will hopefully also experience productive exchange amongst the readers and writers: We are interested in all comments, replies, additions from the authors or editors of the respective media units and from the readers who are familiar with the reviewed unit and who wish to contribute additional comments or points-of-view.

In addition, we have included in this second publication of FQS a multitude of new publications and some older publications in our List of available media units. It would please us to see that the one or other media unit could peak your interest enough to write a review yourself.

Günter MEY

Book Review Editor

Citation

Mey, Günter (2000). Editorial Note FQS Reviews. Forum Qualitative Sozialforschung / Forum: Qualitative Social Research, 1(2), Art. 33, <http://nbn-resolving.de/urn:nbn:de:0114-fqs0002335>.